For Little Works (2007) Büttner equipped a group of Carmelite nuns with a video camera to document themselves within their closed community in Notting Hill, London. The film shows the nuns making and sharing gifts: items like crafted objects and drawings, which the sisters describe as 'little works'.

Little Sisters: Lunapark Ostia (2012) was filmed at an amusement park near Rome, Italy. The film takes the form of a conversation between the artist and two women from a convent, who manage a small arcade in the park. The group discuss and share their thoughts around notions of spectacle, value and contemplation.
